

Governor Bullock Directs 14-Day Quarantine for Travelers Arriving in Montana From Another State or Country

Former Governors

March 30 2020

Governor Steve Bullock today directed that travelers arriving from another state or country to Montana for non-work-related purposes undergo a 14-day self-quarantine. The Directive follows the governor's prior travel advisory and last week's Stay at Home Directive.

"While we love our visitors, we would ask that you not come visit while Montanans are watching out for one another by staying at home," said Governor Bullock. "This is important not only to protect our health care system, but also to protect against the spread of COVID-19."

"As of today, travel from another state or country is the most common known source of COVID-19 infections in Montana. I am asking anyone who is in Montana from another state or country to self-quarantine for 14 days," continued Governor Bullock.

The Directive applies both to travelers entering the state for non-work-related purposes and to those entering for work-related purposes. Travelers must self-quarantine for 14 days, either in their own home or in a hotel or other lodging facility in Montana—whichever is shorter. The Montana Department of Corrections is also advising that they must notify potential out-of-state renters of the Directive.

about the quarantine requirement. Health care workers are excluded from the Directive.

Further, the Directive authorizes the Montana National Guard to conduct temperature checks at Montana airports and rail stations and screen for potential exposure history for travelers arriving in Montana from another state or country.

The Directive is effective now through April 10, 2020.
