Fan Capacity Reached for Indy 500; Race To Be Shown Live on NBC in Central Indiana

May 27, 2021 | By Indianapolis Motor Speedway

The Indianapolis Motor Speedway issued this statement Thursday, May 27 regarding the lifting of this year's broadcast delay:

"We've hit our capacity for this year's Indianapolis 500 and look forward to hosting 135,000 fans at the world's largest sporting event since the pandemic began. We're thrilled to welcome fans "Back Home Again" and appreciate our loyal customers and their continued support.

"With no more tickets available and 40 percent of venue capacity reached, we have decided to lift the local broadcast delay for this year's race. Central Indiana spectators will be able to tune in on NBC beginning at 11 a.m. We look forward to an exciting and historic edition of the Indy 500 this weekend."
