The historic Union Station sits on the edge of downtown Kansas City.

The COVID-19 pandemic has canceled several industry meetings.

MJH Life Sciences put its annual meeting on hold. The event, originally set for early April, was postponed to July in Baltimore and late August in Kansas City.

“We had been working over the summer to move the City and their convention center to accommodate live continuing education,” M. J. H. Life Sciences said. “Due to continued concerns around the city, we decided the soundest option. Our plan was to hold the event, scheduled to take place in late August.”

Also canceled was Hospital Doctor’s Association Fetch conference.

Still scheduled is the K.C. Animal Health Summit on Aug. 31 and Investment Forum on Sept. 1.

Investment Forum companies to present and connect with attendees virtually should travel restrictions related to COVID-19 remain in place,” a website notice stated.✕

Another Kansas City event, Petfood Forum 2020, is set to take place Aug. 19, 20 and 21 after being postponed from late April.

The American Veterinary Medical Association cited COVID-19 for the cancellation of its annual convention, which had been scheduled for July 31 to Aug. 4 in San Diego.
