Forget about booking those flights to Tampa, Florida, and Kansas City, Missouri. The International Association of Veterinary Business Owners (IAAHPC) Petfood Forum 2020 will be held online due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The hospice association meeting will take place online Oct. 1 to 4 under the leadership of Dr. Tyler Carmack, DVM, CVA, C.

“In knowing the effect the pandemic has had on the annual meeting virtually just means we can still have it. Tyler Carmack, DVM, CVA, C.

“We are incredibly excited for the opportunity to provide robust learning to so many more people who are unable to travel during this time, and we have a contingency to participate in the event.”

Live and recorded presentations will be available from founder Marty Becker, DVM.

mid-August. Now, a virtual conference under the name Petfood Forum Connect is set for Sept. 9, 10, 15, 16 and 17. ✕

“Petfood Forum Connect offers an engaging platform that will bring the global industry together to network, learn and continue conducting business in a time when in-person sales visits and meetings aren’t possible,” said Steve Akins, executive vice president of global pet food and events for the organizer, WATT Global Media.

The online program will feature presentations and panel discussions on topics ranging from pet food consumer trends and marketing to nutrition, ingredients, technology and research. More information is available at bit.ly/3dKtiN0.

Other in-person events that moved to online formats include the American Veterinary Medical Association’s annual convention and the KC Animal Health Corridor’s Global Animal Health Week.

The AVMA Virtual Convention will take place Aug. 20 to 22. Registration is underway at bit.ly/2ND3JD3.

Global Animal Health Week has been scheduled for Aug. 31 through Sept. 4. More information is available at bit.ly/AnimalHealthSummit.

Also lost to the pandemic is the 2020 AVMA Virtual Convention, which was scheduled for Oct. 1-3. The event now will be online Oct. 20-22.
