Being in public places poses an inherent risk of being exposed to COVID-19. The Missouri State Fair cannot guarantee that you will not be exposed to COVID-19 during your visit.

The Missouri State Fair has increased cleaning and health precautions for guests during the 2020 State Fair. COVID-19 is an extremely contagious disease that can lead to serious illness or death. Guests should evaluate their own risk in determining whether to attend the fair. The CDC advises that those who are particularly vulnerable, including those over 60 and those with underlying health conditions, may be at higher risk for severe symptoms. Even those with no symptoms can spread the virus if infected. Interaction with others on the fairgrounds poses a risk of contracting the coronavirus. By attending the Missouri State Fair, you voluntarily acknowledge and agree that you assume the risks associated with attendance.
